building a better
WORKPLACE

with Kevin Burns - Workplace Expert & Keynote Speaker

It USED to be that if you got a good education you'd get a good job, that offered a good pension, and that you'd stay in that job until you retired.

Today, it's different. Today, we're in a war for talent and no longer are pay and pensions enough. To find better talent, better managers and even better customers, we must first start building better workplaces.

That is the expertise you'll take away from our next speaker.

Kevin Burns got started in business at the age of 12 by breaking sales records on a Dicky-Dee Ice Cream bicycle.

He became one of Canada's youngest full-time radio disc-jockeys at 14.

He also spent five years as a professional sports team mascot.

Now, as an author and management consultant, Kevin has become one of North America's leading authorities on Management Trends and Building A Better Workplace for the Future.

His seven books and his regular business media appearances have already moved thousands of people towards positive change.

Now, it's our turn. Please help me welcome, Kevin Burns!!!
